

Enterprise & Operational Risk Management

Managing risk across your enterprise with Archer

With the increasing complexity and velocity of risks, ad hoc approaches to risk management create inefficiencies that leave risk management teams overwhelmed with their workload and the business scrambling to make informed business decisions. Risks can get lost “in the cracks” between risk functions, leaving the business struggling to identify business priorities and assign accountability to known risks and controls. The result is reactive rather than proactive risk management, causing stress when incidents occur.

Many organizations have not taken a proactive approach to managing risk. Your executive team and board of directors need assurance that your organization’s internal control framework is adequately designed and operating to ensure that risk is managed effectively.

With Archer, your risk management efforts can be a strategic advantage for your organization.

Improved decision-making: Help leaders at all levels make informed decisions by providing a clear, consolidated, and consistent view of risk.

Quantitative approach: Enable your risk team to deliver business-relevant risk analysis, improve decision-making, and achieve strategic goals.

Improved performance: Standardize your organization’s risk management process and establish a common risk language, measurement approach, rating scales, and reporting.

An efficient enterprise and operational risk management program provides management with the insight to make the right decisions, and achieve strategic outcomes.
